What is Philosophy?

- ▶ Whether you've thought or wondered about these questions or not, congratulations! You're about to!
- ▶ Philosophy is all about thinking about thinking
- ▶ It's not about the answers: it's about thinking about the questions!
- ▶ Philosophy provides an opportunity to evaluate, discuss and reflect on questions – hopefully leading to answers.

How Do We Define Philosophy?

- ▶ There is no concrete definition of philosophy.
- ▶ The shortest definition came from contemporary philosopher Anthony Quinton who wrote:

‘philosophy is thinking about thinking’

– Anthony Quinton

When Socrates met Plato.

“Thinking about thinking”

- ▶ Invented by ancient Greeks to answer the big questions about:
 - Nature of reality
 - Quest for happiness
 - How to build a good society
 - What makes life worth living
- What do you believe are the answers to these questions?

“Thinking about thinking”

- ▶ The philosopher’s task is not to understand concepts, it is to try to understand what exists and the nature of it’s existence.
- ▶ A philosopher does not ask the time – instead a philosopher would say ‘Does time exist? If so, what is time?’
- ▶ The philosopher, however, must create logical, well-crafted arguments to support their opinions.
